BIBLIOGRAPHIES IN BIBLICAL STUDIES

2019-20

Bibliographers are responsible for the plan of their own work. Consequently students will save time if they note the makeup of each bibliography they consult--Table of Contents, subject divisions, indexes, etc. The date of coverage for each bibliography should be noted. In some cases there will be a duplication of materials among sources (e.g., the Malatesta bibliography on St. John's Gospel is based on the Elenchus Bibliographicus of Biblica, 1920-1966). A valuable section of some of the biblical bibliographies will be the part that deals with "Critical and Exegetical Studies of Passages." Notice the key to abbreviations and the sample form of entry that is often given.

A subject index to biblical journals, multi-author works, and chapters from some monographs arranged under the following major headings: Introduction to the Bible, Old Testament, New Testament, Jesus Christ, Biblical Themes. Book titles are in italics; chapters from books are in quotation marks. If the chapter is from a multi-author work, the book title is preceded by “dans” (French for “in”) and follows the chapter title. If the chapter is from a single-author work, the book title precedes the chapter title. Vol. 1 indexes 70 Catholic periodicals and 286 books published, 1930-70. Vol. 2 updates indexing for the 70 periodicals in vol. 1 through 1975, and adds 50 new journals (non-Catholic) and 812 books published 1930-75. Vol. 3 (1930-1983) updates vol. 1-2 and adds coverage for 43 new journals and 450 multiauthor works. The table of contents for each volume is in the back in French, English, German, Italian, and Spanish. Subject index (Table of Headings, pp. 1737-1775) in vol. 3 indexes all three vols. If more than one article is listed on a subject in the bibliographies, the entry numbers given refer to the first entry listed under that subject heading in the respective vols. Materials on places (including archaeological data) are indexed under the heading "Archaeology" under “Sites” in the "Introduction to the Bible” section. Entries are arranged alphabetically according to geographical name. These listings begin on the following pages: vol. 1, p. 6; vol. 2, p. 18; and vol. 3, p. 69. The list of abbreviations is in the front following the list of "works reviewed."

Indexes over 600 journals of archaeology, history, language, science, and theology covering English language articles from 1793 to 1969/70. Vol. 1 contains 138 sections on bibliographical material, biographical material of O.T. personalities, the history of Israel, Habiru/Hebrew problems, sociological & cultural studies, women in society, ancient agriculture, metallurgy, defense & warfare, commerce & economics, calendar studies, metrology, ancient monetary systems & numismatics, jurisprudence, and government & politics. Vol. 2 contains sections on the following areas of Ancient Near Eastern studies: biography, chronology, science, and geography, with a special section on cities and places within Palestine. Vol. 3 contains sections on science & the Bible, archaeological expeditions & societies, architecture, artifacts, art, Assyriology, and Egyptology. Vol. 4 is devoted to articles dealing with textual and literary criticism of the O.T. It includes sections on papyri & ostraca; pre-masoretic & masoretic texts; ancient versions; early & modern English translations; hermeneutics; and translation principles & problems. The last section on literary criticism is arranged by biblical book and includes articles on authorship, authenticity, unity, canon, historical reliability, documentary hypothesis and O.T. backgrounds. Vol. 5 covers the three major subjects "Religionsgeschichte," philological studies, and the Bible as literature and includes sections on monotheism, syncretism, the levitical priesthood, feasts, sects of Judaism, the genre of wisdom literature, messianic expectation, mythology & folklore, ancient religions, the alphabet, onomatology, grammatical studies on ancient Near Eastern languages (also Greek & Latin) with two extensive sections of Hebrew and Greek lexicography. The last section covers Hebrew poetry, form criticism, and style. Vol. 6 covers critical and exegetical studies of passages from the O.T. and the Apocrypha and Pseudepigrapha. Vol. 7 covers ancient Near Eastern literature. Vol. 8 covers theological studies, studies on the influence & interpretation of the O.T. and ancient Near East in the fine arts, worship, & contemporary culture in general, and studies on the discoveries at Qumran. Vol. 9 (published in 2 parts) contains errata (pt. 1: xl-lxxx), addition of sources published in the indexing period, but omitted in earlier volumes (pt. 1: lxxxi-cliii), author and subject indexes, foreign words & phrases index, and Scripture index.
