Campbell Street Core Values

Campbell Street Church of Christ Core Values

The desire of the Campbell Street church is to prayerfully discern and follow the direction of the Holy Spirit in the pursuit of what is good and true.

With this understanding, we have made it our mission to know love and be light by embracing the extravagant dimensions of God's love so that we may be filled with the fullness of God. In turn, we are sharing that love with the world as a light in the darkness, so that all will come to praise the Father (Eph. 3:17-19, Matt. 5:14-16).

In the discernment process, our core values serve as a filter by which we evaluate every opportunity. We ask ourselves three questions, "does this encourage diverse spiritual gifts, does this inspire transformational discipleship, and does this create authentic community?" (1 Cor. 12, 2 Cor. 2:16-18, Acts 2:42-47).

We hope to awaken diverse spiritual gifts in every member of the Body by fostering diversity and unity, raising up leaders, promoting missional imagination, building up the Body of Christ, valuing every member and gift, and embodying the mission of God.

We aim to inspire transformational discipleship by engaging in biblical teaching and preaching, equipping God's people for service, pursuing spiritual formation, seeking ministry team opportunities, participating in community engagement, and supporting global missions.

And we hope to create an authentic community by reaching the next generation, enriching multi-generational connections, developing loving relationships, practicing biblical hospitality, cultivating a safe and welcoming environment, and responding in worship.

We believe these core values reflect the trinitarian unity of the Godhead - Father, Son, and Spirit. We believe that our loving Father created and desires authentic relationships. We believe that Jesus, our saviour, teaches and calls for transformational discipleship. We believe that our guiding Holy Spirit lives in and equips each of us with diverse spiritual gifts for the mutual benefit of the whole body.
